

Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement

This statement is made in accordance with section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes our slavery and human trafficking statement for the financial year ended 31st July 2016. Modern slavery is an overarching term to describe all forms of contemporary slavery including human trafficking, slavery, servitude, forced, bonded and child labour. This statement sets out the steps the University has taken, and will take in the coming year.

1. Organisational structure

Teesside University is a Higher Education Institution which provides a wide range of teaching, research, enterprise and related activities and as an exempt charity operates on a 'not for profit' basis. The Board of Governors is responsible for the educational character and mission of the University, for the management and administration of all of our resources and for our strategic direction. The Vice-Chancellor is responsible for the day-to-day leadership and management of the University and leads the development and delivery of our vision and strategy. The Audit Committee is responsible for overseeing University policies on all aspects of Governance and related activities.

2. Business

Our main campus is in the centre of Middlesbrough in the heart of the Tees Valley. The University is organised into five academic schools which are supported by a number of professional services (non-academic) departments. We have over 18,500 students registered on courses both in the UK and overseas of which over 15,000 are studying on the Middlesbrough campus. We employ over 2,300 staff and had an income of £130m for the financial year ended 31 July 2016.

3. Teesside 2020 Corporate Strategy

The University's 2020 Corporate Strategy sets out the values by which it seeks to enhance the experience of all our students, staff and external partners and includes:

By embracing diversity and actively opposing prejudice and taking responsibility and demonstrating leadership. The University has a Corporate Social Responsibility Framework in place which captures our commitment to service, which we deliver through working in partnership with individuals, communities and civic organisations to address the needs and aspirations of our local communities in the Tees Valley, and all of the other communities across the globe that we reach through our education and research.

4. Policies

The University does not tolerate modern slavery or human trafficking in its supply chain or in any part of its business. It has employment policies and codes of conduct in place that have relevance to how this issue is addressed within its business by members of its staff.

The workplace policies and procedures in place at the University demonstrate its commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all its business relationships and to implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to ensure slavery and human trafficking is not taking place anywhere in its supply chains.

We have developed a Modern Slavery Policy that applies to all persons working for us in any capacity including all employees, agency workers, seconded workers, volunteers, interns, agents, contractors, external consultants, third-party representatives and business partners.

5. Assessment of areas of risk

We have assessed which of our business areas are most likely to give rise to a risk of slavery or human trafficking and whilst the University's supply chain is considered to be the highest risk other areas are:

- Recruitment of staff
- Students and
- Representatives and educational establishments we do business with

6. Compliance Work Undertaken to Date

6.1 Supply chain

The highly varied activities of the University necessitate the management of a diverse supplier base delivering goods, services and works. The University's supply base spans several broad category areas including: Construction, Laboratory Equipment, Catering, Professional Services, ICT, Facilities Management and Laboratory and Office Consumables. Across these categories, the University engages with a range of suppliers including large corporations and SMEs, both locally and internationally. It is recognised that the risk of Modern Slavery occurring will vary across these supply categories and the level of risk may also be impacted by the supplier's size and location. For example, it is considered that larger UK registered suppliers, having a turnover in excess of £36m, may represent a lower risk of breaching the Modern Slavery Act as they themselves must publish an Annual Statement and they would be expected to raise awareness and drive compliance with the Modern Slavery Act in their organisations and their supply chains. The University has therefore developed a risk-based approach to mitigating the risk of Modern Slavery in its supply chain.

All EU procurement processes now include within the Standard Selection Questionnaire (SQ) a disclosure of compliance relating to Modern Slavery Act 2015. This will ensure any tenders of above EU threshold are assessing compliance to the Modern Slavery Act 2015 for each bidder.

We have also undertaken a review of the Annual Statements on Modern Slavery for our main purchasing consortia, including the North East Universities Purchasing Consortia (NEUPC) and The Universities' Catering Organisation (TUCO). Purchasing consortia exist to manage a robust procurement process, including appropriate due diligence, on behalf of their members. Our review of consortia policies and annual statements has provided evidence that the consortia are, or are working towards, integrating the requirements of the Modern Slavery Act into their processes. This provides assurance that any suppliers on their frameworks are likely to carry a lower risk of the occurrence of Modern Slavery.

Our Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking statement reflects our commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships and to implementing and enforcing systems and controls that seek to ensure slavery and human trafficking is not taking place in our supply chains. Teesside University will not support or deal with any business knowingly involved in slavery or human trafficking in any part of its operations.

We will assess any instances of non-compliance on a case-by-case basis and will take remedial action appropriately. We will only trade with those who fully comply with this statement or those who are taking verifiable steps towards compliance.

6.2 Recruitment of staff

We ensure that working conditions are safe and hygienic and working hours are not excessive.

We have a Whistleblowing Policy which enables employees to raise concerns about any criminal offences or breaches of any legal obligations.

We have robust recruitment processes in place and all potential employees who wish to work for Teesside University must complete the following checks prior to being appointed;

- Proof of eligibility to work in the UK in accordance with the Asylum and Immigration Act 1996
- Unspent convictions
- Health Declaration
- Discloser and barring service identify form (dependent on the role applied for)

The University pays the Living Wage which is an approved rate of pay in excess of the Minimum Wage.

Temporary staff are only engaged through established sources (recruitment agencies), who comply with legislation relating to rights and welfare of their candidates and employees.

6.3 Students

Although the risks of students experiencing occurrences of modern slavery or human trafficking through direct contact with the University are extremely low it is recognised that whilst living within Teesside and the surrounding area, they may become aware of such instances or on very rare occasions be entrapped into adopting the life style of a modern slave. In order to mitigate these circumstances the University has in place easily accessible and established channels through which students can obtain assistance, support and advice on their wellbeing.

Potential students are asked to declare if they have a criminal conviction when they apply to the University. Applicants for courses which require a check by the Disclosure and Barring Service are required to complete a full check even if they have not declared a criminal conviction. These include nursing and other health profession courses as well as Teacher Training and education courses. For other applicants who have declared a criminal conviction, details are requested from the applicant and sent to the criminal convictions panel for consideration.

Students who hold a Firm offer of a place on a full time course are invited to apply for University accommodation. When students are allocated University accommodation (Residences or Managed Housing) they are required to sign an Occupancy Agreement. This states that the accommodation is for their sole use whilst they are undertaking a full time course here and they are not permitted to sublet the accommodation to anyone else. Wardens are employed at all the Residences with 3 at each site to deal with any issues in the evenings when the Accommodation Office is closed.

In the case of Managed Housing. The Accommodation Team inspect the properties at least once per term and the Landlords also go to the properties to undertake maintenance or to check on the tenants periodically (all with prior notice). The University does not place any students who apply for our accommodation in accommodation managed by private Landlords/Agencies. We do not recommend any private accommodation providers to any students.

6.4 Representatives and educational establishments we do business with

We undertake due diligence on representatives and educational establishments before we do business with them and this will be expanded so that we gather information about their approach to slavery and human trafficking.

International agents are appointed to work on behalf of Teesside University to cover the geographic areas required in the recruitment of international students. The spread of these agents is such that it enables the university to access more markets. In addition they can travel more easily in certain areas, and have a better understanding of the local culture and market perception. All agents undergo an application and vetting process. Once they have passed the due diligence checks and are suitable to represent the university all agents' sign up to the International Student Recruitment Agency Agreement. Within these contractual terms is a clause which covers Modern Slavery.

All agents are communicated with on a regular basis and agents in those countries where the University has significant recruitment activity are visited at least annually by University staff. This ensures that they are up to date with the latest regulations from UKVI and the offer at Teesside University.

7. Our Plans for the Future

In respect of our supply chain, the University plans to build on the steps already undertaken to reduce the risk of Modern Slavery occurring and to bring contractual clarity to our expectations of suppliers with regard to the Act. The University's Procurement Strategy and Procedures will be reviewed to ensure Modern Slavery is accounted for within our key priorities and supply chain selection. We will embed updated purchasing terms and conditions within procurement activities across the University. These terms and conditions will be made available on the University's website and all purchase orders will include a link. For any contracts where the University's standard terms and conditions are not used we will ensure that Modern Slavery clauses are included. We will also include a 'pass or fail' section in all PQQ' and ITT's.

We are keen to ensure a high level of understanding of the risks of modern slavery and human trafficking in our supply chain and are committed to raising awareness amongst all staff about this. In particular we will stress the need for operational practice to match the expectations in this area. We will engage widely with staff on the issue during the coming year and will investigate the need for additional training for certain categories of staff.

Guidance on slavery and human trafficking for internal purchasers and staff involved in purchasing from high risk categories will be prioritised in 2017.

Student placements at external organisations are common practice as part of the educational curriculum and as such these organisations are commonly of a size and structure that they would need to comply with the Modern Slavery Act 2015 but each placement will be assessed on its own merit and relevant procedures will be developed during 2017.

As part of our ongoing review and monitoring activities, we will ensure that the representatives and educational establishments we are already doing business with have taken and are taking appropriate steps to eliminate slavery and human trafficking from their businesses and supply chain. Action will be taken to address any concerns we identify.

We will ensure that an express obligation on slavery and human trafficking is included in our agreements with representatives and educational establishments and, where applicable, will also require representatives and educational establishments to take similar steps in respect of the sub-contractors they use.

This statement has been approved by Teesside University's Audit Committee on behalf of its Board of Governors. It will be reviewed and updated as necessary or on an annual basis.
